DIVA BEHAVIOUR

The Wikipedia definition of a diva is 'a celebrated female singer, a woman of outstanding talent in the world of opera and by extension in theatre, cinema and popular music'.

US singer Mariah Carey qualifies on all counts. Born with an amazing five-octave vocal range, there's no doubting her God-given talent – even if her, uh, diva behaviour overshadows it these days.

'I swim in evening gown and heels,' Mariah told a US interviewer last week.

'I do not observe birthdays,' she also declared. 'I do, however, celebrate the anniversary of my birth every day at 3.27am, pm, EST, PST and ST!' (That's three different time zones!)

We're hoping Mariah was joking – but can't be sure, given her reputation for OTT behaviour in the past. This is a woman who demanded to be lifted onto the sofas on GMTV, when she appeared there (she didn't want creases on her dress) and who employed an assistant to walk backwards in front of her at all times in case she fell over!

One thing IS definite, though – Gemma Collins' diva behaviour is causing havoc in TOWIE and not in a good way, either.

The self-styled Queen of Essex famously buried her alter ego 'GC' last week on TV – but within days was up to her old tricks again – this time upsetting her dearest friend and defender Bobby Norris, by dropping him in it with other castmates and throwing a drink over him. Nice!

Note to Gemma: only real-life divas like Mariah, who have earned their stripes as singing legends can get away with such outrageous behaviour. Even if you really think you are the Queen of Essex, keep the diva that is 'GC' buried and revert to the bubbly blonde we know and love. Please!

Earn your diva stripes, Gemma Collins...

4 A Scottish wedding for Taylor and Calvin?

8 Helen's rocky road to contented motherhood

50 12 pages of summer fashion and beauty start here...

16 Kendall takes sister Kim's crown

Taylor and Calvin have only been dating for five months but things are getting serious

Singer Joe Jonas and models Gigi Hadid and Karlie Kloss recently took a trip down the Thames with the loved-up duo

TAYLOR & CALVIN TALK marriage...

They met at the Brit Awards in February but Taylor Swift and boyfriend Calvin Harris – the world's hottest new power couple – are already talking about their future together...

They overtook Beyoncé and Jay-Z in the money stakes last year, raking in a combined total of £92 million – compared to Bey and Jay's £70 million – yet Taylor Swift and Calvin Harris aren't protective of their cash.

The pair, who've only been dating for five months, have already discussed marriage and decided they don't want to draw up a pre-nuptial agreement.

Despite their huge separate fortunes – Taylor, 25, is worth a massive £127 million, while Calvin, 31, is worth £42 million – the couple believe signing a pre-nup would take the romance out of their wedding.

'They have very much talked in general terms, but things are getting very serious between them,' a source claims. 'They both know what they want from the future and having fallen hard and fast, pre-nups and marriage came up in conversation almost straight away. They're both in agreement about the pre-nup and don't like the idea.'

Having admitted in the past that she falls in love easily, Taylor has told friends that a marriage contract takes the romance and trust away.

'They're in love and there's an immense trust between them,' says our source. 'She trusts Calvin implicitly and he trusts her. Not to mention the fact they're both financially secure enough independently to not need or want one another's money.'

The Scottish DJ and American singer/songwriter got together in February and made their relationship public in April. Since then, they've posted loved-up pictures online and have been holding hands and hugging on the red carpet.

When Taylor – now considered the most powerful and influential female in the music industry – forced Apple to back down over not paying artists during a trial period of music streaming, Calvin tweeted his support, calling her 'my girl'.

In turn, Taylor told her fans how much she loves Scottish people during her recent 1989 tour. And, now our source says a wedding in Scotland could be on the cards.

'Taylor would love a big wedding at home but she loves Scotland and could be persuaded to do it there, especially as her family can travel more than his extended family can,' says our insider. 'They've also talked honeymoons and would love to take a camper van and disappear either in Europe or North America for a while.'

Yet the history of failed showbiz marriages shows they could be making a mistake if they don't have a marriage contract in the event that things go sour.

'Pre-nups aren't about not having faith in your marriage,' revealed an expert. 'They're about protecting yourself should the worst happen. We understand Taylor and Calvin thinking they're unromantic, but with fortunes like theirs involved they're very practical for wealthy, high-profile couples.'

TAKING OVER AS RICHEST COUPLE

With their combined music careers and earning potential, Taylor and Calvin are a more lucrative pair than Beyoncé and Jay-Z were at the start of their relationship.

'If Taylor and Calvin continue on their trajectory together, they'll eclipse them. In the right climate, and if they stay together, they will be billionaires in years, not decades. A pre-nup is not about taking the romance out of anything, it's about being sensible, responsible and protecting everything they've worked so hard for.'

Insiders say Taylor's parents, Scott and Andrea, are keen on protecting their daughter's financial interests.

'They've met Calvin and like him but, for them, it's not about the here and now, it's about the future, and where Taylor could end up if things don't work out between them.'

RITA'S TALKING WEDDINGS, TOO!

Looks like Taylor might not be the only one lusting after a Scottish wedding, after Calvin's ex, Rita Ora, revealed she's keen to swap nuptials there, too!

The X Factor judge, 24, was heard saying she'd love to wed her boyfriend of one year, Ricky Hilfiger, in a Scottish castle, despite her ex's roots.

TAYLOR SWIFT, 25

REAL NAME: Taylor Alison Swift
BORN: 13 December 1989 in Reading, Pennsylvania, USA
PARENTS: Scott Kingsley Swift, a financial advisor, and Andrea Swift, a former finance marketing executive EARLY LIFE: Raised as a Presbyterian on a Christmas tree farm, Taylor's pre-school was run by nuns and she attended bible school every summer. When she was nine the family moved to Wyoming and they spent summers in Stone Harbour, New Jersey. She became interested in musical theatre and travelled to Broadway for singing and acting lessons. The family moved to Nashville when she was 14, so she could pursue her career. Taylor released her debut album aged 16 and was the youngest person to write and sing a no.1 country song. She released three albums before she moved to pop with 1989.
BEST FRIEND: Abigail Anderson, who works with war veterans
CELEB PALS: Karlie Kloss, Kendall Jenner, Cara Delevingne, Gigi Hadid, Lena Dunham and Selena Gomez, to name a few
LIFESTYLE: Runs one hour per day and eats clean on weekdays, but splurges on burgers and treats at the weekend

HELEN'S ROCKY ROAD

blissed-out m

With the arrival of baby Matilda, Helen Flanagan's finally got the family she's been dreaming of. And now, her relationship is going from strength to strength, too...

Helen Flanagan was overjoyed when she gave birth to her first daughter last week. Taking to social media, the proud new mum, along with her partner, footballer Scott Sinclair, took the opportunity to show off their new bundle of joy Matilda Jessica Sinclair.

Aston Villa striker Scott, 26, showed off his new family, saying, 'Best day of my life welcome to the world Matilda Jessica Sinclair,' alongside a sweet selfie of the couple cradling their little girl.

Actress-turned-model Helen, 24, added a heartfelt tweet reading, 'Cannot stop staring at or kissing my beautiful baby girl', before changing her Twitter bio to read, 'Loving mummy to Matilda Sinclair.'

She also called Scott an 'amazing dad' and 'my everything.'

Helen shared with her 333k followers various cute snaps of herself and Scott snuggling with Matilda. Their daughter was born on 29 June, weighing 7lb 6oz, at Good Hope Hospital in Sutton Coldfield.

And, behind the scenes, baby Matilda has helped her new parents' relationship to go from strength to strength.

'They think that the baby will be a massive plus for them. People think they are a golden couple with tons of cash, but life has been rough for them, too, and they still have the same insecurities as everyone else,' says an insider.

'Matilda will ground them and bind them to each other, because they won't be worrying what everyone else is saying about them – they'll be far too busy looking after her.

'Scott now has the perfect family unit, and Helen wants to be the ultimate mum and partner. She has never made any secret of the fact that she wants a brood of babies, so there is no chance that little Matilda will be the only one.'

The couple have experienced their fair share of ups and downs over the past couple of years. They split for six months in June 2013, after three and a half years together. Helen moved out of their rented Cheshire mansion when it emerged that Scott had been caught sending sex texts to TV presenter Donatella Panayiotou, after they'd met in Cannes, France.

At the time, Helen said, 'I kind of think, if you love someone, you have to sort it out. The time apart probably did us good. We got together when we were really young – when I was, like, 19 – so it's kind of hard.'

She added, 'We were still seeing each other and trying to sort things through. We've both had time to grow up.'

And, since overcoming their problems and sealing the deal with a baby, they are more loved-up than ever before.

A source said, 'Matilda will be the glue that will bind them together for good. They have been going out for a long time and, when they split, they never really stopped seeing each other. They had always talked about children but wanted to make sure they were both ready for the commitment.'

We are family! Scott and Helen are madly in love with their daughter

'He was linked to another woman on a trip to France, but denied anything ever went on. Helen's forgiven him for getting caught out sending some sexy texts to her.'

'But the strain caused them to split for a time, to take stock of their relationship. However, the time they spent apart made them realise that they were meant for each other, and having a baby was the next step.'

Next stop, an engagement?

Helen said recently, 'We'll definitely get married at some point. Scott knows what type of ring I want – one with a huge rock on it.'

CAITLYN'S FASHION ROLE MODELS

Since her stunning transition last month, it looks like Caitlyn Jenner has upped her style game, by emulating fashionistas including step-daughter Kim Kardashian West.

Having previously admitted that she'd stolen an item or two from 34-year-old Kim's closet before her gender transition, Caitlyn now looks to be taking style tips not only from Kim, but singer J.Lo, and even royalty in the form of the Duchess of Cambridge, Kate Middleton, too.

She might be 65, but we reckon Caitlyn is still rocking it with the best of them!

For the everyday girl, saying you'd like to visit an Italian restaurant for your birthday would mean a trip to the local branch of Pizza Express.

But when you're Cheryl Fernandez-Versini, an Italian dinner means an Italian dinner, in the country itself!

Lucky Cheryl was treated to the surprise date to celebrate her 32nd birthday last week, with her French hubby Jean-Bernard, 34, pulling out all the stops to make it special... as he flew her to Italy for the whirlwind trip.

The X Factor judge later shared a series of snaps documenting the lead-up to the big reveal, including a final one of her at dinner, captioned, 'When you're asked what you would like for your birthday and you say let's go to a nice Italian restaurant... then you actually end up IN Italy. I need to step up my game. I'm feeling very lucky and grateful.'

BROODY PETE

'ONE MORE BABY PLEASE, EM!'

Will The Voice ask Pete to join their judging panel?

Superdad Peter Andre cannot wait to get married to his doctor fiancée... because he's planning some post-wedding baby-making

Pete and Emily are doting parents...

... and there could be more on the way

Businessman, dad-of-three, Mr Popular... There are many strings to Peter Andre's bow, but a hectic schedule doesn't mean he's ruled out having more children.

His first child with fiancée Emily MacDonagh, Amelia, arrived last January and now Pete, also dad to Princess, eight, and Junior, 10, is thinking about expanding his brood.

Pete, 42, tells us, 'We want to be married before we have another baby, so we have to be careful. One more and I'd be happy. Another girl would be fun, but I've always wanted a boy. However, if Junior is the man of the house, that's fine, too.'

In fact, the Aussie singer wants to bring his wedding date forward so he and Emily can, erm, crack on! 'It was going to be next year but I think we're going to do it this year now,' Pete says.

As for the wedding itself, 'I really like English traditions and Emily likes the Greek ones. I do have the luxury of having a property in Cyprus, so we have the option of having something there.'

Pete is letting his gorgeous bride-to-be take the reins on planning their big day. He adds, 'Guys don't plan as much as girls. I haven't thought about the kids being pageboys or flower girls. All I want is to deal with the food and entertainment!'

And after the celebration of their nuptials? Pete and Emily could be landing back to earth with a bump if she gets pregnant.

Pete admits, 'Parenting is tough. Even when they sleep through, there's teething and the odd night when they're not well. There's times when you're really lacking sleep but it's worth it for the joyous times. And then it's challenging travelling with them to Australia - that can be hard.'

The singer adds that his age has played a factor in his and Emily's decision to try for another baby. 'I want to have all my children by the time I'm 50. I don't want to be changing nappies then,' he says.

Emily qualified as a doctor in January, after taking time out from her studies to have Amelia. At the time, proud Pete bragged, 'She's only gone and done it - Emily passed her final exams. Dr Emily MacDonagh, sounds great, doesn't it?'

Em, 26, landed her first job in April and Pete says, 'It's really nice to have different things to talk about, because we're in two different industries. I try not to talk too much about what I've been doing in the day because it's not the same as being someone who can save people's lives. She's loving it.'

As for work, last week Pete interviewed stars including Rita Ora and Mark Ronson for Nordoff Robbins - the UK's leading provider of music therapy - at their annual Silver Clef Awards. 'It's a great honour, as the best artists in the world attend it. The work Nordoff Robbins does is incredible. Music is an international language, so there is no better therapy,' he says.

Meanwhile, Pete won't be tempted back into the jungle for I'm A Celebrity this year. Instead, he wants to be on the other side of reality shows. 'I'd rather be doing what Ant & Dec do,' he says. 'I love presenting. If The Voice want to talk, they should call me. It's really brave of The X Factor to change things, but I'm more a fan of The Voice because the judges are all singers. I'm always hoping that I get asked to be a judge, but I'd probably prefer to be the presenter. I'm used to getting judged, so I'm not in the position to tell anyone, "You're rubbish". Doting dad, sexy singer and modest to boot? Oh, Pete!

It's official:
Kendall Jenner
is top dog.
And sister Kim
Kardashian
West isn't happy...

Proud owner of the most liked photo on Instagram ever, a member of (arguably) America's most famous family and with a body to die for, we could only be talking about one person, right?

But if Kim Kardashian West sprang to mind, you'd be sadly mistaken. Pretender to the Kardashian throne, Kim's younger half-sister Kendall Jenner, 19, has overtaken her formerly more famous sister and trounced her in the social media stakes to boot.

Sticking the oar in to fame hungry reality TV star Kim, 34, Kendall's been steadily amassing a fan base and online following to rival Kim's ever since she stepped into the spotlight last year.

And last week, model Kendall overtook Kim's record for the most liked picture on Instagram (a shot from her Italian wedding to Kanye West, which gained 2.4 million likes) with an artsy image of her lying on the floor in a white lace gown with her hair styled in heart shapes. The shot, posted just over a month ago has already garnered 2.6 million likes, clinching the top spot from her sister.

MOVE OVER, KIMYE!

Further twisting the knife in, Kendall tweeted about her achievement, writing, 'Take that KimYe!', while insiders say she's thrilled at the news.

'Kendall knows Kim will always be Kim, and it's nothing against Kim, but this was a big thing for her, says the source. 'Kim has always been the centre of attention, and now Kendall is sneaking up on her.'

And Kendall isn't Kim's only threat, with youngest sister Kylie, 17, also hot on her heels.

As we went to press, Kim had posted 10 new Instagram photos in the Reveal says

'Perhaps it's time to concentrate on your expanding family, Kim!'

Stepping out of Kim's shadow,
Kendall was quick to crow about having the most liked

OVER KIM...

about Kendall

last 48 hours alone. On Wednesday, she shared her eye-popping Rolling Stone cover (below).

On the flip side, Kendall posted just 10 pictures in an entire week, clearly leaving her fans wanting more. Meanwhile, every photo Kylie's uploaded in the last week has had at least a million likes.

Some of Kim's latest uploads haven't been received as positively as in previous times, perhaps signalling we've reached Kimye saturation point. A recent shot of Kim in Cannes only notched up 632,000 likes, compared to the millions she's used to.

DESPERATE MEASURES

Kim even resorted to tweeting her estranged brother Rob Kardashian, in a thinly veiled attempt to stir up controversy, which fell flat.

She also drip fed news of her pregnancy and the announcement it was a boy, which similarly failed to ignite the public's attention.

And Kim's in agreement that the world seems to be losing interest in her, which has made her see red.

'The world is much more interested in Kendall and her younger sister Kylie now,' says a source. 'Kim has posted so many selfies that everyone has seen enough. Her Selfie book just came out, and it's overkill for Kim.'

'She makes money off of all of these ventures – but it also means the attention on her is diluted,' adds the source.

'Kim considers herself the star of the family and thinks none of them would be famous if it weren't for her.'

'But now that everyone is branching out on their own, they don't rely on Kim for publicity. Kim misses being the person in the family whom everyone depends on.'

And it seems Kim is pulling out all the big guns in order to wrestle back her social media crown. 'Now, Kim is thinking up a storm on how to stay on top,' continues the source.

'She may change her lifestyle to come off as the doting mother. She wants to post more pictures of her and North, and one of Nori holding a picture of one of Kim's pregnancy scans. Everyone loves pictures of kids, so her focus is going to turn to Nori.'

LEWIS WOOS Kendall

Formula One champ Lewis Hamilton is doing everything in his power to win over successful supermodel and reality TV star Kendall Jenner...

She hung out with him in Monaco during the Grand Prix, and was spotted relaxing on his yacht in May, sparking rumours of a romance.

And last week, Kendall Jenner was Lewis Hamilton's date to Drake's star-studded Wireless 10 after-party. Kendall, 19, and Lewis, 30, headed to Libertine nightclub together after watching Drake headline the London festival.

They were joined by Kendall's close pal, model Gigi Hadid, and her boyfriend Joe Jonas. The foursome left the venue together in the early hours of Monday morning and jumped into a waiting car, while trying to hide their faces from the waiting paparazzi.

The double date comes after Lewis – ex-boyfriend of Nicole Scherzinger – spent weeks trying to win over supermodel and Keeping Up With The Kardashians star Kendall.

Sources say the pair are now dating and – although it's early days – Lewis is smitten. 'There's a huge connection between them,' says a source. 'There's a massive chemistry everyone around them can feel.

They're very different, but similar in a lot of ways, too. They're both at the top of their respective fields, both very passionate about what they do, both way older than their years and both very focused on what they want, now and in the future.

'It might be early days, but they're moving pretty fast. It's pretty intense.'

FAMILY VALUES

Lewis has gone out of his way to woo Kendall, and has even been cosying up to her family in an effort to win her heart.

Just days before their double date in London, he lent his private jet – a bright red Challenger 605 worth £10 million – to her mum and sister, Kris Jenner and Kim Kardashian West.

Kris, who is a big fan of Lewis and fully supportive of his efforts to date her daughter, posted a picture of her and Kim boarding the jet, captioning it, 'Thanks for the ride, Lewis Hamilton!'

And, just days before that, Lewis spent time with Kim's 'Cannes Clique' during the film festival in the French Riviera. He joined Kim, her sister Kylie and her boyfriend Tyga, mum Kris and her boyfriend Corey Gamble and their friends Ryan Seacrest and comedian Steve Harvey, for dinner.

Friends of Kris say she's desperate for Lewis and Kendall to make a go of things. 'She really wants Kendall to date him,' says a source. 'Lewis and Kris have become friendly in recent months and she thinks he's perfect for her daughter.'

'Kendall usually goes for bad boys like Chris Brown and Justin Bieber so Lewis could be a good influence on her.'

Lewis, who has been widely lauded as the world's most eligible bachelor, has a massive fortune of £68 million and has just signed a new five-year, £100 million contract with Mercedes. He's on the path to becoming Britain's richest sports star, and financial experts are predicting he'll surpass David Beckham's personal fortune and could potentially threaten 'Brand Beckham' – David and Victoria's combined wealth of £210 million.

And the flush star isn't scared of flashing his cash in the pursuit of love – he's even been on the hunt for a thoroughbred for horse-loving Kendall's birthday.

'Kendall turns 20 in November and Lewis is in the process of optioning a few horses, so he can give her one for a birthday present,' says our insider. 'She's recently taken up riding again, having ridden for over a decade as a child, and is an accomplished horsewoman who really knows what she's doing in the saddle.'

'They both have a love for speed in common, him on four wheels, her on four legs. Kendall gets really illuminated when she talks about horses.'

She adores them and is really comfortable in their presence.

'Lewis loves that passion and he wants to surprise her with something she'd never think of. She told him how much she loves riding and he's been on a real charm offensive to sweep her off her feet.'

...WHILE NICOLE SHOWS HIM WHAT HE'S MISSING

Lewis's ex-girlfriend, Nicole Scherzinger, who he split from in February after an eight-year, on-off relationship, certainly hasn't let his flirtations with Kendall Jenner get her down.

Jetting out to the Greek island of Mykonos to celebrate her 37th birthday last week, the former Pussycat Dolls singer had a whale of a time.

Splashing about in a leopard print bikini, Nicole looked absolutely gorgeous. And, later that evening, she donned a short sequin dress and danced in the street with her girlfriends, even flashing her knickers to onlookers.

It seems she too has moved on from her relationship with Lewis – with hunky Swiss footballer Pajtim Kasami who, at 23, is 14 years her junior. The hot Olympiacos player even carried a worse-for-wear Nicole home at the end of her raucous night of celebrations, and the pair were spotted kissing.

Yet Lewis can't completely put his ex out of his mind.

He posted a cute photo of the pair on his Instagram on Nicole's birthday and wrote, 'Through the years we shared a lot, I wouldn't have changed a thing. All the experiences made me the man I'm proud to be right now. The memories together will never be taken away no matter how old we get and I'm thankful for the time we had.'

with Cheryl in the primetime judging stakes

NICOLE'S revenge

Nicole Scherzinger is in talks to become a coach on BBC1's The Voice – hoping to upstage Cheryl Fernandez-Versini as the hottest talent show judge

Former X Factor judge and Pussycat Doll Nicole Scherzinger is being lined up as a judge on The Voice – with the added bonus of getting one over on Cheryl Fernandez-Versini as tempting as any pay packet!

After a rocky start to the year – she was dropped by her record label RCA and split from her boyfriend Lewis Hamilton – Nicole's aware that taking the job would boost her profile once more.

But more importantly, being on The X Factor's rival talent show means she would go head-to-head with her former co-judge, Cheryl, 32, who labelled Nicole 'odd and crazy' in her autobiography, Cheryl: My Story.

Our source says, 'Is getting one over on Cheryl motivation to consider this job? You bet it is! Nicole takes motivation from every aspect of her life, and the way she's been treated by Cheryl is right up there.'

'Nicole's not one to dwell on the negative, but if someone has a problem with her – which Cheryl clearly does – then she isn't going to roll over for anyone. Bear in mind she didn't pick this fight; she's never been anything other than polite to Cheryl.'

The pair have major history – boss Simon Cowell replaced Cheryl with Nicole on the US X Factor in 2011. Two years later, Cheryl joined the panel of the UK X Factor, but only after Nicole had quit her role.

Then, in her autobiography, Cheryl branded their first meeting 'bizarre', claiming Nicole 'embarrassingly' sang her own song back to her.

Cheryl said, 'She started singing Promise This to me, and I swear to God the woman sang the whole song, to my face. It was just so awkward.'

Nicole was left 'baffled' by Cheryl's 'silly' claims, adding, 'I hoped she'd only have spoken highly of me because I've never spoken poorly of her.'

To add to the girls' feud, it's Cheryl's former BFF and manager, Will.i.am, who's championing Nicole for the coaching role, and he's not the first fella who's jumped ship from team Cheryl to the Nicole camp.

Cheryl's former fling, dancer Derek Hough, was partnered with Nicole on 2012's Dancing With The Stars – which she won.

Cheryl, meanwhile, seems to have drifted apart from both men.

Derek left her out of his autobiography, Taking The Lead: Lessons From A Life In Motion, while Will.i.am had no idea she'd wed French businessman Jean-Bernard last year, saying, 'Oh she got married already? I didn't even know that!'

And there's even competition between the ladies when it comes to their glossy tresses, with Nicole the face (well, hair) of Herbal Essences shampoo and Cheryl 'worth it' for L'Oréal Elvive.

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY FOR NICOLE

Last week, Nicole reportedly flew to London for talks with The Voice bosses, after celebrating her 37th birthday in Greece with her new beau, Swiss footballer Pajtim Kasami.

She was a huge hit as a judge on The X Factor, and if she makes a success of The Voice, she knows she can steal Cheryl's thunder from The X Factor – with Chezza already facing the arrival of new judge Rita Ora (who was a judge on The Voice last year – swapsies!)

Our source explains, 'This is a golden opportunity for Nicole.'

'She's been stung by her recent poor record sales in the UK, but when things go wrong for her, she works harder, and the exposure she'd get from doing The Voice would be perfect for her.'

'Throw in the fact that it's Will asking her, and it's really a no-brainer. This is a guy who used to run Cheryl's solo career, but then decided to move on, so that's another feather in her cap.'

Scott has some explaining to do to Kourtney as he lounges on a sunbed with his ex Chloé Bartoli (left)

LOOK AWAY,

Kourtney...

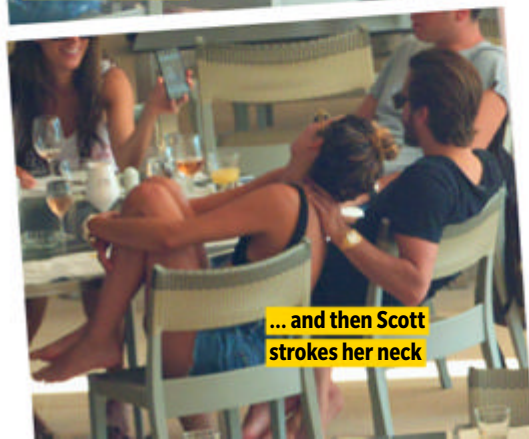

As Scott Disick frolics in the sun with his ex girlfriend, does this mark the end for him and Kourtney Kardashian?

Chloé feeds the Kardashians TV star...

... while the dad-of-three puts his arm on Chloé's back...

... and then Scott strokes her neck

They've been together for nine years and share three gorgeous kids, yet things aren't looking good for Kourtney Kardashian and Scott Disick.

Amid reports the Kardashian babe has kicked Scott, 32, out of their home, he was seen looking cosy with ex-girlfriend, stylist Chloé Bartoli, 25.

The pair were spotted in Monte Carlo – and these pictures say it all. Scott can be seen stroking Chloé's back and face while she feeds him from her fork. They later relaxed on a sunbed together.

Scott is holidaying in France while Kourtney, 36, looks after their children, Mason, five, Penelope, who turned three on 8 July, and six-month-old Reign, at home in the States.

Not surprisingly, the reality TV star is furious with Scott's antics. According to a source for US website Hollywood Life, 'Kourtney is once again embarrassed by Scott's behaviour and she has been made aware of these pictures. She is absolutely livid with what she has seen.'

'Her mind's racing on what else could be happening. Scott breaking her heart isn't anything new, but this latest issue has her very upset and not sure what to do. She is shell-shocked by it.'

The couple have a rocky relationship. He's battled booze and drugs demons and went off the rails after losing both his parents within three months last year. When Kourtney revealed she was pregnant with Reign, he accused her of 'suckering' him into it. It was also recently revealed they sleep in separate beds.

They've endured a lot and stayed together, but could this be the final straw?

Kelly Jenkins

WHO IS CHLOÉ BARTOLI?

Scott dated Chloé years ago, but reportedly left her when he met Kourtney.

The pretty brunette and her twin sister, Marielou, are stylists to the stars and have dressed everyone from Nicole Richie, to Chrissy Teigen and Selena Gomez.

The LA-born fashionista used to date Jared Leto and styled him for years.

'I'D BE CONTENT AT HOME WITH THE KIDS'

Mum to son Rex and pregnant with her second baby, Fearne Cotton opens up about quitting her career to be with her children

At just 33, Fearne Cotton has already amassed plenty of 'dream job' roles on her impressive, and seemingly endless, CV.

After being hired as the first permanent female radio DJ for the BBC in 2007, Fearne has since gone on to present over 26 primetime TV shows and has a successful clothing range with very.co.uk.

The star – who has a two-year-old son, Rex, with husband Jesse Wood, 38 – recently revealed that she is expecting a second child, but shocked fans when she hosted her final Radio 1 show in May.

Now, in an open and honest interview with Red magazine, an effortlessly glam and scarily grown-up Fearne reveals she may never return to work.

She said, 'If an amazing opportunity came in, I'd do it. But if there wasn't anything really grabbing me, I'd be very content being at home with the kids.'

'BEING A MUM HAS CHANGED ME'

Fearne admits she was 'obsessed' with her career and worked relentlessly to be successful in her field from the age of 16.

However, she said that motherhood has given her a completely new focus.

'Work has been quite defining for me. I've always had a plan,' she said.

'But, having a baby gave me a lioness confidence and a complete shift of perspective about the business.'

'I didn't take it as seriously and I wasn't as obsessed.'

On her decision to leave Radio 1, she added, 'I think sometimes the best decisions are the ones where people go, "Why would you do that?" I could stay for five years but why not just do it now, be brave and leave on high, rather than being asked to leave?'

Fearne Cotton is expecting her second baby

She broadcast her last Radio 1 show in May

'I WANT TO BE GROWN-UP LIKE HOLLY'

Before you start worrying that Fearne has morphed into a boring adult, we can assure you she's still very much the rock chick that we know and love.

Despite always looking just the right side of dishevelled in an 'I woke up like this' uber-cool kind of way, Fearne confesses she still struggles to balance potty training disasters with her near-perfect public image. In fact, she aspires to be like her Celebrity Juice co-star, Holly Willoughby.

'My aim is to be grown-up like Holly. I go round there and her house is so perfect and she's so together. I go home and think, "I live in a shole".'

'And then there are mums who say,

"What? Your kid doesn't eat raw kale? My kid eats loads of raw kale".

'And don't get me started on potty training. I've made a sticker chart. It's not working.'

It also seems that Fearne's hectic family schedule leaves little time for romance...

'Jessie and I dance around the bathroom when Rex has done a poo in the potty,' she said. 'It's hilarious.'

KIERAN BLASTS KATIE'S 'cheat, tweet'

Katie Price was in the doghouse with husband Kieran Hayler last week, after she insinuated on Twitter she'd had relations with a top footballer

Katie Price felt the wrath from all angles last week when she tweeted a cryptic message which seemed to suggest she'd had a fling with footballer Joe Hart.

Just hours before the England and Man City goalkeeper married his girlfriend of seven years, Kimberly Crew, Katie, 37, tweeted, 'All Harts go out to the married couple, is he going to tell her the truth about us?'

She took the tweet down less than four hours later, but not before angry Twitter users branded her 'cruel' for sending it on their wedding day.

One online user said, 'Why are you trying to ruin an innocent woman's day? Grow up and stop playing childish games.'

Another added, 'Really low trying to make someone else's wedding about you.'

While Joe, 28, and beautician Kimberly, 32, are no doubt privately angry, too, it's Katie's husband Kieran Hayler who's given her the biggest telling-off.

'Kieran went mad about the tweet and told Katie to take it down,' an insider tells us. 'He's fuming that after they've worked so hard to rebuild their marriage, she's belittled it and brought shame on them as a couple.'

Katie's been branded 'low' for tweeting on Joe and Kimberly's big day

'For days after, people were still posting backlash comments and Kieran had no sympathy for her – he asked her what she was thinking by tweeting it.'

'Not only does he think it makes her look bad, he's told her that by saying these things, people will think they have an unhappy marriage.'

Not only that, but Kieran, 28 – who famously cheated on a pregnant Katie with her two pals, Jane Pountney and Chrissy Thomas, last year – apparently had no idea of any connection between his wife and Joe.

While it's not known what went on between the pair, the mum-of-five hinted in April that a few male celebrities should be quaking in their boots at the release of her new autobiography.

She teased, 'I think people are always shocked by what's happened to me.'

'My next book is out in October and

Reveal
says

'Oh dear. Just when you thought things were going smoothly in the Price-Hayler household'

I think I better leave the country when it comes out. There are lots of things in this one that I left out of the last.

'There are a couple of household names in there who've upset me so I think it's about time I tell the truth about them.'

'It will definitely raise eyebrows. If you think what's happened to me this year has raised eyebrows, you just wait to see what I left out.'

THE TABLES HAVE TURNED FOR KATIE AND KIERAN

However, she should probably run these romances past her husband first, as he's apparently fuming he was left in the dark about the alleged fling with Joe.

We're told Kieran had no idea she was planning her tweet, either, so he's been asking questions about the supposed tryst.

Our source says, 'Kieran hates confrontation – he would normally walk off rather than have a face-off with Katie.'

'But he's clearly irritated by her suggestion that she slept with Joe, and he wanted to know what she thought she was going to achieve by doing that.'

Katie has kept her head down since it all kicked off, and her agent also declined to comment.

She deleted the tweet and didn't turn up to the Magic Mike XXL premiere in London's Leicester Square, which she was set to attend with Kieran.

She blames sending the tweet on a hangover from partying with Kieran in Brighton the night before.

Since Kieran cheated on Katie, while she was pregnant with their son, Jett, now 20 months old, he's taken a backseat, while she's slated both him and his former fancy women in interviews and during her time on Celebrity Big Brother.

But, for the first time since getting their marriage back on track, Kieran's stood his ground and has told her to apologise.

However, according to our source, Katie's refused, instead giving their own marital problems as an example for why she was right to send the tweet.

'Kieran's told her it reflects badly on her because she knows what it feels like to be betrayed, yet she's put another woman in that situation,' says the source.

'While Katie regrets sending the tweet when hungover, she's refusing to apologise, saying she's not a marriage wrecker.'

'She's tried to justify it to herself by saying she's doing Kimberly a favour.'

'She's aware nobody wants to hear there are secrets in their relationship, but she thinks it's just as cruel to be left in the dark, only for the truth to come out later down the line.'

After just six months of dating Marnie Simpson, Ricky Rayment's decided to put a ring on it. Will they be reality TV's first couple to make it down the aisle?

Marnie & Ricky's WHIRLWIND engagement

They've only been together six months, but Ricky Rayment and Marnie Simpson have fallen for each other hard. And now they've loooong exceeded their quota of soppy messages on social media, they're notching it up a gear by getting engaged.

Loved-up Ricky, 25, can't bear to be away from his sidekick a minute longer, so he popped the question while she was filming the Geordie Shore season finale in Zante, Greece.

A source says the couple are 'over the moon' as they look forward to planning their wedding, adding, 'Ricky came in for the last episode, and that's when he proposed to her. They're really happy.'

It was clearly a pleasant surprise for Marnie, 23, who tweeted, 'The week I thought would be my worst ever turns out to be pretty special. You never know what to expect in life but I love the surprise.'

The pair then celebrated in style by having a night in front of the telly, with 'beans on toast with cheese.'

Jess wasn't the Wright woman for him

If they do end up getting married, they'll be the first from a scripted reality TV show to do so.

There have, of course, been many other famous TOWIE couples – notable examples being Lauren Goodger and Mark Wright, and Lucy Mecklenburgh and Mario Falcone – but none of these stars has been engaged to someone from a rival show.

QUITTING THEIR REALITY TV CAREERS

Ricky – who left TOWIE in May, six months after splitting with his co-star Jess Wright, 29 – made his proposal during his Geordie Shore debut, which must have been a kick in the teeth for the show that made his name.

In a further dig, Ricky last week tweeted, 'I remember when Towie used to be fun and there was laughter. It's a shame. Bring back the good times producers.' Ouch.

It's unlikely his girlfriend will be returning to Geordie Shore after the latest series either, which should please Ricky, who says he misses his new girlfriend when she's away filming.

Confessing that the reason he quit TOWIE was to concentrate on their relationship, he says,

'I miss her so much! I can't speak to her for three weeks, which is one of the hardest things I've ever had to do.'

'When you find the right person, it's a totally different feeling. I'm filled up with happiness now.'

'I want a future with Marnie, and to start a family – it feels right.'

When they began dating in January, fans were sceptical that it was a 'showmance', with even Marnie's GS co-star Charlotte Crosby, 25, doubting the relationship.

Then came reports that Marnie cheated on her fella, with a source telling us last month, 'It's happened more than once, and Ricky is aware of the situation.'

However, Marnie strongly denied the allegation, and it seems the lovebirds are set to prove the cynics wrong as they excitedly plan their big day.

'I'M SCARED MAX WILL HOOK UP WITH JESS NOW'

Love Island's Naomi Ball broke her fellow Islander Jess Hayes' heart twice, by swiping both Josh Ritchie and Max Morley from her. Now that she's left, Naomi's worried that Jess will seek the ultimate revenge...

HI, NAOMI! WHAT WAS THE FIRST THING YOU DID WHEN YOU LEFT THE ISLAND?

I called my mum. It was nice speaking to someone who gets me.

WHY DO YOU THINK THE PUBLIC DIDN'T SAVE YOU?

Because of the way I handled the situation between Josh and Max. I should have been more clean-cut – it was never my intention to lead Josh on, but I never wanted to hurt anyone's feelings, either. Plus, the situation with Jess didn't do me any favours – I didn't just steal her man once, I did it twice, although it wasn't deliberate.

WILL YOU SEE EITHER MAX OR JOSH WHEN THE SHOW IS OVER?

I'd like to be friends with Josh, I think he's a character. And I'd love to see Max and see where that leads to. We only had a short amount of time together, but we instantly clicked.

SO THERE'S A POSSIBILITY OF A ROMANCE WITH MAX?

Yeah, there's definitely potential.

BUT WITH JOSH...?

Just friends. I think he's gorgeous but, realistically, there's nothing more between us.

WHAT IF MAX OR JOSH COUPLE UP WITH JESS?

I think it's inevitable, but I can't quite call who it'll be at the moment. I'm scared it's more likely to be Max, because Josh has already drawn a line under it, whereas Max and Jess didn't end on bad terms.

DID YOU HAVE A CRUSH ON LUIS?

[Long pause] Erm... I think he's a good looking boy. We get on well, but I can't ever really see it happening between us. Also, I'm such a supporter of Cally and Lu now, they're a great couple.

WHO WILL YOU REMAIN FRIENDS WITH?

The Hulk (Jordan), Luis, Cally, Danielle and Daisy.

WHO ARE YOU HOPING WILL WIN?

Cal and Lu – I'm a big 'Calu' fan!

HOW DO YOU FEEL ABOUT PEOPLE HAVING SEX IN THE HOUSE?

It's a very intense environment, so relationships do move quickly but, on a personal level, I could never do it. Even when I was kissing in bed, I felt my mum was at the foot of the bed watching! For me, it would never have been an option. But Hannah and Jon aren't even doing it privately now – give it another week and they'll be doing it on the kitchen table!

WHO'S THE BIGGEST GAME PLAYER?

Maybe Jess. I'm not sure her feelings for the guys are genuine because she says it's a bit of fun, so in my mind she's trying to stay on the Island for as long as possible, moving from guy to guy.

ANY CHANCE YOU AND JESS WILL BE PALS ON THE OUTSIDE?

[Laughs] I just can't see that happening!

Love Island, ITV2, Sun-Thurs, 9pm

The blonde beauty hopes for romance with Max when he's out...

... but is worried Jess and Max will get closer in her absence

7 reasons why we love island

Buff torsos? Check. Rows and romance? Check. This is why ITV2's Love Island is fast becoming our guilty pleasure...

1 THOSE NAUGHTY TEXTS

Just when you think things can't get any crazier in a villa full of sex-starved, red-blooded 20-somethings, Love Island sends a text message to stir things up even more, complete with a cute little hashtag at the end. We especially like it when they outed self-confessed player, Naomi, as a player, who then played the game by denying she was a player. #GetIt? #Busted

2 JON AND HANNAH'S LANGUAGE OF LOVE

Essex boy Jon and Scouse babe Hannah are a match made in heaven.

'Erm, what does misdemeanor mean, babe?' Hannah asks her man, who proudly replies, 'It's an American word, babe, I heard it on one of 'em cop shows once.'

We also love the way Jon gets his way out of an argument by telling Hannah, 'You make me feel like a unicorn, babe.' #Smooth

3 CALUM'S THE BEST

Celebrity Love Island 2006 winner (and our guilty crush) Calum Best rocked up to the villa to show the boys how a 'top night in Magaluf is really done.' Josh brought back two girls, and the following day the boys were forced to watch their antics with the girls – naturally, all hell broke loose. #NiceOneCalum

4 ZOE - GOOD GIRL GONE BAD

'I want romance, but I know 100 per cent I would never have sex in that villa – my priest will be watching,' so born-again

Christian Zoe told us before entering the villa.

Two weeks in, and she's been tempted by Jordan aka The Hulk's 'big blue spider' (code word), giving him a birthday treat to remember. Unfortunately, her priest will probably remember, too! #He'sWatching

5 SUN'S OUT, GUNS OUT

Luis, Josh, Max and crew are so egotistical that they can't even put their tops on for a romantic dinner date. Thank God for those egos, and those pecs. #Phwoar

6 LAUREN AND LUIS' LOVE-IN

Hannah and Jon/Josh and Naomi/Zoe and Jordan – but, for us, the sweetest love in the house is the friendship between BFFs Luis and Lauren. Luis' speech to save Lozza from eviction in the first week was adorable. But now that Luis is smitten with newbie Cally, we desperately want the lovely Lauren to find herself a crush, too. #UnluckyInLove

MORE PIE THAN A PASTRY SHOP

So far, we've counted the word 'pie' more than 3.1 million times. True story. Poor Lauren got pied (dumped) in the first five minutes when nobody chose to be coupled with her, while Jess has been pied off twice in favour of Naomi. Not that Jess is bitter about it, threatening to dunk her nemesis in the swimming pool... #TeamJess

'MY SON'S FRIENDS fancy me!'

TV's Gabby Logan talks sexism in sport, her glamorous image, and how her good looks embarrass her kids

Blonde, giggly and with a great knowledge of sport, it's no wonder blokes have a crush on TV sports reporter Gabby Logan.

Unfortunately, just as Gabby has plenty of admirers, she has her critics, too, and she's previously been praised for targeting Twitter trolls who send her sexist abuse for her job in a male-orientated profession.

'Every so often, you get someone sending you something on Twitter that's quite crude,' says Gabby, 42.

'Someone disagreeing with my opinion is fine, but when they start using sexist language, there's no place for it – it's 2015.

'I enjoy a bit of banter but if they tweet something that's aggressive, then that's not on. Or sometimes I'll get, "Alright love, let me stick my seven inches up your you-know-where." That's not OK, that's where you've got to draw the line, guys!

'I don't want my kids picking up my iPad and seeing that on my Twitter.'

'YOUR MUM IS HOT'

But with the bad comes the good, and Gabby – who's been presenting sport programmes such as BBC Sports Personality Of The Year and Final Score for almost 20 years – is flattered that, as a mum to nine-year-old twins, Reuben and Lois, she still has plenty of male admirers.

'At 42, you don't think of yourself as fanciable. My kids find it hilarious. Reuben gets embarrassed by it, though.

'Recently he said, "The year eight boys say to me, 'Your mum is hot.' I told them, "Are you joking? She's 42!"' she laughs.

'He thinks that's ridiculous, so now he asks me people's ages. He's like, "How old is Gwen Stefani?"

'It must be so confusing for boys nowadays because all these celebrities in their forties look incredible – but Gwen Stefani is older than me, so that definitely confused my son, as he thinks she's pretty!

Gabby's the daughter of former Welsh international footballer Terry Yorath, and represented Wales in gymnastics as a teenager.

Her husband is ex-Scotland rugby player, Kenny Logan, 43.

While she moves in sporting circles, Gabby still oozes glamour and admits to being a 'girlie girl', who spends a great deal of time in her dressing room, complete with a walk-in wardrobe.

She says, 'It's like my office because I love clothes, bags and shoes and I like to make sure I'm looking presentable on camera.

'I use some great make-up artists – I have no problem admitting I wouldn't go on telly without make-up.

'I wouldn't turn up in a tracksuit with no make-up on to present the rugby from Twickenham because, even though it's rough, laddish sport, I still have to give a polished performance.

'It's no different to how we want the men to look good in their suits when they're presenting.

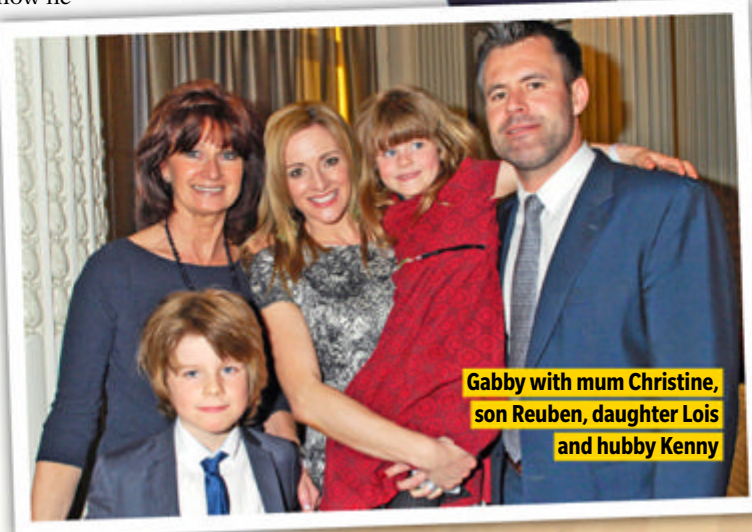

'TV is supposed to be aspirational, so there has to be glamour. Sport has become glamorous now anyway and it's not just restricted to the back pages any more – just look at those big WAG weddings.'

WHAT DO MEN THINK OF Christian Grey?

Fifty Shades author E L James' new book, Grey, sold over a million copies in its first week. But what do guys make of this sex-fest, seen through the eyes of Mr Grey?

The verdict is in... Grey goes in the bin

Compiled by Su Karney Photos Maria Jeffries & Su Karney

'CHRISTIAN HAS SERIOUS ISSUES'

KRIS PACE, 26, A DOG WALKER FROM HERTFORDSHIRE, SAYS...

I'm a total Fifty Shades virgin. I'd heard all the hype, but had no interest in it whatsoever. But when I started Grey, I thought I was reading the intro to American Psycho. This Christian bloke's got some serious Patrick Bateman issues. And a potty mouth!

Now, I'm sure there's the odd Christian Grey-type chappie out there, and what he gets up to behind closed doors is his own business but, in my view, most of this book was utter nonsense.

The majority of blokes will confide in their mates if they like a woman. You might even get the odd "you'll never believe what happened last night" story.

But this is on a whole different level. Never has one of my friends started yapping away down the pub about how his "ck hardened" when he saw a woman he liked! Nor have I ever heard how a woman's smell reminded a guy of his "grandfather's apple orchard".

The lines of utter tripe that littered this book had me in stitches on a number of occasions. I guarantee you, no man has ever thought, in these particular words: "Is she drawn to my scent? Like I am to hers?" Most blokes would just think, "She smells nice, but she hasn't mentioned my new aftershave. Maybe it's rank."

And, "Her words travel directly to my dk, passing 'Go' on the way," was a particular highlight. Monopoly-based sex talk always goes down a treat...

If women fail to realise that most men don't have the same sexual desires as Christian, then there's probably going to be mass disappointment.

However, if some ladies are frustrated with their own sex lives, and this gives them the nudge to be a little more experimental in the bedroom, then that's not a bad thing!

Christian's potty mouth does nothing for Kris

'WHERE ARE THE PICTURES?'

MARTIN DAUBNEY, 44, A WRITER FROM LONDON, SAYS...

Like most blokes who open a copy of Grey, my first thought is, "So, where are the pictures, then?"

Us men are visual creatures, well-versed in internet porn, and actually having to read something to get aroused takes me back to the bad old days of nicking my dad's porn mags from the biscuit tin under his bed.

Try as I might, I just can't get aroused by Grey's unintentionally hilarious script. It starts badly, with flashbacks to Christian Grey's tortured childhood.

"My green car is fuzzy. Covered in grey fur and dirt. I want it back. But I can't reach it. I can never reach it. My green car is lost. Lost. And I can never play with it again." Erotic it ain't!

In chapter three, we're told Anastasia Steele "has a fresh, wholesome fragrance that reminds me of my grandfather's apple orchard". My grandfather had an orchard, and let me tell you, it smelled mainly of horse manure and cat wee.

When we do get to the sex scenes, it's like something out of a 1970s Penthouse letters page. Orgasms are florally described – "suddenly she tenses and her body convulses around me." If my missus ever behaved like that during nookie, I'd be on the blower to NHS Direct, pronto.

It's laugh-out-loud funny, with choice lines like, "And there she is: disarming once more, surprising me at every turn. My ck concurs."

And: "Anastasia watches me with – what? Trepidation? She's probably never seen an erect penis before."

Well, she's certainly

Guffawing
Martin certainly sees the joke

Reveal
says

'Memo to self – never buy apple-scented
perfume'

making up for lost
time now, matey!

In short, Grey is torture – and there's no way I'll be going back for a second crack of the whip. How do women get turned on by this guff?

James reckons it's been rehashed to make more cash

'I'D RATHER READ MY NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC!'

JAMES BALL, 35, AN OPERATIONS MANAGER FROM BEDFORD, SAYS...

The first hundred pages of Grey could be a five-second trailer for the movie – Christian meets Anastasia, he fancies her, they go on a helicopter and finally have sex. It is DULL.

I don't think E L James writes convincingly as a man at all. And I don't know any guys who'd say things like, "She has a fresh, wholesome fragrance that reminds me of my grandfather's apple orchard." The only time my wife Charlotte smelt like an orchard was after three Magners on a summer's day!

Grey definitely isn't sexy – I was just a bit indifferent to it, really. Having read a bit of Charlotte's copy of the Fifty Shades trilogy, I can't see what the point of this new book is – it's just been rehashed to make some more cash.

Christian even starts referring to Ana's vagina as "her sex", like she does in the trilogy. Has it all just been copied and pasted? Or maybe E L James forgot to press delete!

I do think there are some women who will enjoy it, but they're mistaken if they assume that's how a guy thinks. It's definitely written from a female slant. Christian says, "I caressed her," but most men would be blunt and say, "I copped a feel."

I can't say I know any guys like Christian, and I won't be turning our cupboard under the stairs into a carbon copy of his Red Room of Pain. I think Charlotte would be like, "Get that Hoover away from me!"

If this were a picture book, more men might be interested. But I think I'll stick to my National Geographic.'

BENNIFER: NO MORE

We were genuinely saddened to hear that Ben Affleck and Jennifer Garner have split up after 10 years of marriage.

For months there have been rumours that the pair – who have three kids, Violet, nine, Seraphina, six, and Samuel, three – were heading for divorce, and last week, the day after their 10th wedding anniversary, they confirmed it, saying, 'After much thought and careful consideration, we have made the difficult decision to divorce. We go forward with love and friendship for one another and a commitment to co-parenting our children whose privacy we ask to be respected during this difficult time.'

Reports say Gone Girl star Ben, 42, and Juno actress Jennifer, 43, are using a mediator to work out how they'll split their £96 million combined worth, and they'll share custody of the kids.

THE ROCKY ROAD OF LOVE

JOHNNY DEPP – 1994-1998

After the Calvin Klein advert that rocketed her to fame, Kate met Johnny Depp when she was 21. She recently said of him, 'There's nobody that's ever really been able to take care of me. Johnny did for a bit. I believed what he said.' She admitted to 'years of crying' after their split in 1998.

BILLY ZANE – 1999

Kate had a string of romances after her split with Johnny and, after a month in rehab, she met Billy Zane at her 25th birthday party in Paris.

JESSE WOOD – 2000
Kate Moss dated Fearne Cotton's husband Jesse Wood for six months. The pair have battled addiction and the relationship was short-lived.

GETTING BROODY

Lauren and Jake are already discussing kids

You can't help but be sucked into the baby boom at the moment. It seems that everywhere we look, there's a new bundle of joy.

Little Mix's Perrie Edwards and ex TOWIE star Lauren Goodger seem to have babies on the brain too.

In her first joint interview with on-off boyfriend Jake McLean, Lauren, 28, said, 'I can't wait to be the mum of Jake's children. I still have a few things I want to achieve in my career but I want to be a young mum.'

Broody Jake added, 'Starting a family is the most important thing to both of us and I want to do it sooner rather than later. Lauren will be a wicked mum. She's the only girl I've truly ever seen myself having a future with.'

After her fiancé, Zayn Malik, left One Direction earlier this year, Perrie, 21, is also keen to start a family.

When asked at what age she'd like children, the singer said, 'Well, I would say 24 and that's in three years' time for me. It's still quite a while away.'

'My mam was 24, so that's the ideal age for me.'

But Perrie is planning to tie the knot first.

She added, 'My mam is like, 'What about the flowers? What about this dress?' And I'm like, "Mam, stop!" We've been so busy, but I literally cannot wait to start planning my wedding.'

Perrie wants to get married before she has children with Zayn Malik

GLASTONBURY LOVE FEST!

The sun rarely shines over the Glastonbury weekend but it seems the unusually warm weather has heated things up between festival-goers.

Adele, 27, and long-term partner, Simon Konecki, 41, made a rare public appearance, taking the opportunity of a romantic weekend away from their two-year-old son Angelo.

The first time parents were rumoured to be living apart at Christmas but were clearly keen to show they are still going strong.

Meanwhile, there was also a romantic reconciliation in the VIP area – presenter Caroline Flack was spotted cosying up to her ex boyfriend, music manager Jack Street.

The two split in December after rumours circulated that Jack cheated on Strictly winner Caroline with Glee star Dianna Argon.

She tweeted at the time, 'Go fill yourself with glee Jack,' but all seems to have been forgiven as the two put on an intimate display while watching Kanye West.

Adele and her partner Simon Konecki made a rare appearance

JEFFERSON HACK – 2001–2004
Kate dated Dazed And Confused editor Jefferson for four years and the two have a daughter, 12-year-old Lila Grace.

JOHNNY LEE MILLER – 2004
After splitting from Jefferson, Kate briefly dated Angelina Jolie's ex, Johnny Lee Miller, before reported flings with Bond actor Daniel Craig and Jack Nicholson.

PETE DOHERTY – 2005–2007
Kate met The Libertines rocker Pete at her 31st birthday party. The pair were on and off for two years and were rumoured to be engaged before their split in 2007.

JAMIE HINCE – 2007–PRESENT
Kate began dating The Kills guitarist Jamie after her split with Pete. They married in the Cotswolds in 2011. The couple have recently been rocked by split rumours after Jamie was spotted cosying up to two separate mystery women at Glastonbury.

Lauren and Vas are the best of friends, but how well do they really know each other?

VAS vs LAUREN

THE FRIENDSHIP TEST

We put TOWIE besties Lauren Pope, 32, and Vas J Morgan, 26, head-to-head to see who knows who the best...

LAUREN ON VAS

HIS FAVE HANGOVER FOOD?

Even when Vas is hungover he's really good with his diet. His willpower is very strong! He loves a Domino's, though. If it's put in front of him, he'll eat it. When we're filming TOWIE it's torture as they always order loads, so it's impossible to resist.

TOWIE CAST MEMBER HE'D AVOID?

He'd 100 per cent avoid Gemma Collins! There are certain people he finds a bit too intense and Gemma is one of them, but she doesn't take criticism too well.

DOES HE WANT CHILDREN?

He definitely does. He's a great uncle to his twin nieces.

FIRST IMPRESSION?

We met through a mutual friend and it was love at first sight. Vas has an amazing energy.

NICKNAMES?

We used to call each other boo but then everyone jumped on it, so we stopped.

HIS WORST HABIT?

He's always on the phone! He's physically attached to it. He never looks where he's going because he's always staring at his iPhone.

EMBARRASSING MOMENT?

He doesn't get embarrassed.

He's too cool for school! I can't remember a time he's fallen over or anything like that.

BIGGEST REGRET?

He isn't the type to have regrets, he's more of a 'live and learn' type. We're both really positive.

WHO DOES HE SECRETLY LIKE?

Vas doesn't secretly fancy anyone, he's open about who he fancies. At the moment I'd say Ollie from the band Years & Years.

WHO'S THE BIGGEST FLIRT?

Vas! I've never seen him use a cheesy chat up line, though. He always gets chatted up.

THE MOST FAMOUS PERSON IN HIS PHONE BOOK?

Take your pick! Kendall Jenner?

HIDDEN TALENT?

He's a very good dancer. His body bends and moves like no other! You should see him in the club doing the dutty wine!

FAVE FILM?

Man On Fire.

FAVE HOLIDAY?

Probably LA. He likes the lifestyle and the vibe there.

FAVE EMOJI?

He uses the crying laughing face loads. I don't think I've ever had a WhatsApp message without one!

VAS ON LAUREN

HER FAVE HANGOVER FOOD?

Domino's pizza. It's always around when we're filming. She loves chocolate too, dark – because it's healthier. Kit Kats are the only bad thing you'll find in her fridge.

TOWIE CAST MEMBER SHE'D AVOID?

Gemma Collins. We usually love and hate the same people at the same time. We've always got each other's backs.

DOES SHE WANT CHILDREN?

Yes I think she does eventually. Probably two – one of each!

FIRST IMPRESSION?

We got on instantly.

NICKNAMES?

No we don't have any.

HER WORST HABIT?

She's very indecisive, does that count? With everything from choosing what to watch on Netflix to making big life decisions.

EMBARRASSING MOMENT?

Today – we had a ketchup and mustard fight at a BBQ and we had to walk through London covered in it. She was cringing!

BIGGEST REGRET?

I don't think she has any.

WHO'S THE BIGGEST FLIRT?

I'd say me. Lauren doesn't really flirt – she just attracts admirers. She plays it cool.

THE MOST FAMOUS PERSON IN HER PHONE BOOK?

Me? Joke!

SECRET ABOUT LAUREN?

She drinks tea through a straw so it doesn't stain her teeth.

FAVE FILM?

Dirty Dancing.

FAVE HOLIDAY?

Everywhere we go she loves. We've been to LA twice together. Marbs isn't a holiday for us – we need a holiday after to recover!

FAVE EMOJI?

The crying laughing face!

Being a young carer

IS ALL I'VE EVER KNOWN

Juggling college assignments with caring for both her parents, selfless Becky Hammerton, 20, is far from your average carefree student...

When most teenagers are offered a place at uni or college, their first thoughts in that initial wave of excitement might be about what to pack, or what their new flatmates will be like.

But my first thought was: who will look after my mum and dad?

I've been a full-time carer since 2005, when I was just nine years old. For half my life, I've done the household chores, paid the bills, organised my parents' hospital trips and managed the weekly food budget.

The thought of trying to juggle a college course as well seemed impossible. But, with the help of my sister, Caroline, 24, somehow we make it work.

Until I was nine, my childhood was normal. But when my mum, Jean, now 54, was involved in a bus accident, everything changed.

Our once-independent mum, who had done everything for us, now had chronic whiplash, causing constant pain in her neck, as well as arthritis and degenerative neck bones. In agony, she was registered

That same year, we also lost both my grandparents, so there were few people we could turn to for help. And, with my big sister Caroline sitting her GCSEs, she needed to focus on her revision. So the role of primary carer fell to me.

It was a heavy responsibility. Struggling to cope, I missed out on huge chunks of schooling. But caring for two parents was a 24/7 job that still starts at 6am in the morning and goes on throughout the night.

I grew up fast and, unlike most of my friends who spend their Friday nights clubbing, I stay in and sort out things like our TV licence and electricity bills.

And my duties don't just end when I go to bed at 9pm – the same time as my mum. I share a bedroom with her now, and wake up at midnight and 3am to check that she's ok.

I can't stand to wake up to her screaming because she's in so much pain, which usually happens when her concoction of 20 pain relief tablets has worn off too soon.

Leaving home to study wasn't an option for me. My sister helps out, but, as I've

'I had no choice – aged 11, I took over as head of the household' disabled, and now has limited mobility and relies on a walking stick to get around.

Overnight, our home life changed and I began tackling all the household chores with my dad, Peter, now 68. But, shortly after Mum's accident, he suffered a nervous breakdown, isolating himself from everyone.

Unable to communicate with him properly, I had no choice, aged 11, but to take over, and ensure the household bills were paid and we had food in the fridge.

been running things for years, I know how everything works.

Having already taken a year out of my studies to focus on my parents, I couldn't turn down the chance to study animal management and applied science at Sparsholt College, Hampshire. I've always dreamed of working with animals, so I accepted my place last September.

The course is three days a week and the college is over two hours away from our home in Bournemouth, so my day starts at 6am. I make sure everything is okay at home, then, throughout the day, I'm writing shopping lists and taking calls about the home adaptations we need for my mum inbetween lessons.

I'm usually pretty tired by the time I get home at 7pm, but my family is my life, so I don't mind.

One of the hardest aspects of being a young carer is money – or the lack of it. People may assume I get funding, but I receive no financial help for looking after my parents. And my mum only gets around £300 a month in disability allowance, which barely pays the bills, let alone leaving enough for food.

Boyfriend Josh
is a lifeline

We eat the cheapest food possible, and there's no money for luxuries such as a family meal out or buying clothes – things most people take for granted. We've never been on holiday.

I don't know what I'd do without my boyfriend, Josh, 19. I see him every weekend. When he comes over, he helps me out at home, and every so often I go to stay with him. It's great to have a break, but I never stop worrying. My sister Caroline stays in Mum's room while I'm away, but I'm always texting her to check things are okay.

Carers Trust has been another source of support. I've been on a couple of weekends away with them and I know I can always find someone to talk to on Matter, a forum for young adult carers.

My mum is filled with guilt about relying on Caroline and me. "I feel like I'm ruining your future, don't feel like you have to look after me," she'll say.

But I reassure her as much as I can that that isn't the case. I don't feel angry or upset that I'm a young carer. It's all I've ever really known. In some ways, it's made me closer to my family, and for that I will always be grateful.

'I FEEL sexier than ever IN MY 30S'

Hollyoaks star Jennifer Metcalfe reveals why she's proud of her body and reckons that lots more women should start loving themselves

She's one of Hollyoaks' sexiest sirens in her role as Mercedes McQueen. So it's no surprise when Jennifer Metcalfe, known for her curvaceous figure and stunning looks, confesses to us that she's feeling more content with her appearance than ever before.

'I'm one hundred per cent happier with my body now than I was in my teens or my twenties,' the 31-year-old says.

'I used to hate my big bum but, since accepting that my curves weren't going anywhere, I've learnt to love them. I've fully embraced what nature gave me, thanks to celebrities like Kim Kardashian.'

'I'D RATHER HAVE CELLULITE THAN NO SOCIAL LIFE'

While it's easy to assume that insecurities come with the territory if you're a TV star, Jen says she's become completely comfortable in her own skin.

'I don't struggle with it any more,' the brunette beauty says. 'My career has made me more aware of the amount of editing that goes on in photoshoots and on social media.'

'I think a lot of girls forget that what you see isn't always what you get, so people feel under pressure to look a certain way.'

'It's important not to compare yourself to other people, because everyone has their insecurities, and our imperfections are what make us unique. If we all had the perfect body, we'd be boring clones of each other!'

By following a 5:2 diet, the gorgeous star says she's able to retain a balanced, realistic diet, whilst still making space for the occasional treat.

'If I'm filming, or at an event, I love to get a takeaway and just eat a bit less of it. But I'd never cut anything out entirely,' Jen insists.

'I couldn't not have the odd glass of rosé in the summer!'

When it comes to exercise, Bradford-born Jen says she relies on a strict gym routine to maintain her enviable bod – a mix of HIIT workouts and yoga classes.

'I like to do high-intensity exercise mixed with Hot Yoga,' she explains.

'I've struggled with cellulite for years, but I've realised that, to get rid of it, I'd have to eat like a saint and not have a social life, which just isn't me.'

'I'd prefer to have a life and accept my body the way it is, imperfections and all!'

JACQ'S WISE WORDS

Jacqueline Jossa has reached out to other new mums by revealing that, like many women, she too is suffering from post-pregnancy hair loss.

But rather than shy away from the issue, 22-year-old Jacqueline, who is mother to four-month-old Ella with partner Dan Osborne, took to Instagram to post a picture of her hairline.

Jacqueline wrote alongside the image, 'For all the new mummies that might be losing some hair after birth, I'm right here with you. Embrace it, and let's enjoy being with our beautiful little cuties!'

The EastEnders actress also shared a selfie of her and little Ella on the social media site.

MARK'S MUSHY MOMENT

Photos: Instagram, Rex Features

The wedding might be over, but it looks like Mark Wright remains happily in the honeymoon phase, after he was caught showing off a personalised phone case featuring a sweet picture of him and his bride, Michelle Keegan, from their big day back in May. Who knew Essex boy Mark could be so soppy?

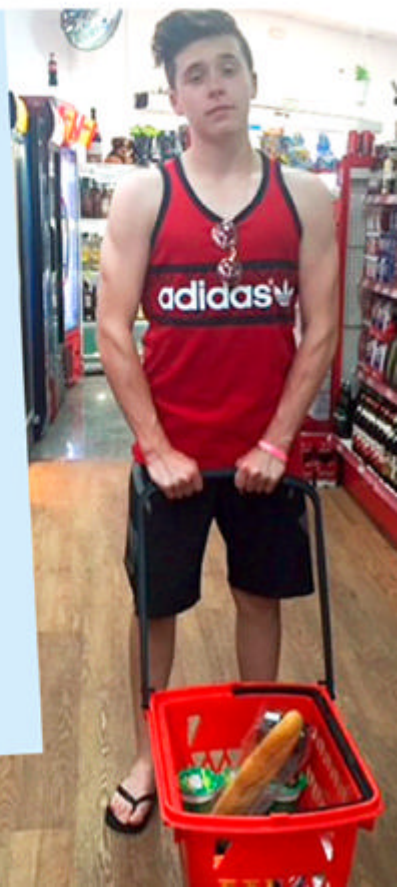

BROOKLYN'S SUPERMARKET SWEEP

Cheeky Brooklyn Beckham was caught humouring his famous mum, Victoria, last week, as he poked fun at her long-time nickname in a recent Instagram post.

In the funny snap, Brooklyn, 16, is shown wheeling a basket full of food, including some not-so-posh Pot Noodles around a supermarket.

He's captioned the image, 'Not 2 posh 2 push' referencing his 41-year-old mum's Posh Spice title.

Handsome and possessing a good sense of humour? Brooklyn is becoming more like papa Becks every day.

IS THAT YOU, GRIMMY?

He's just been confirmed as one of two new judges on The X Factor. And, while it's no secret that Nick Grimshaw is BFFs with countless celebs, including fellow newbie to the panel, Rita Ora, it appears the Radio 1 DJ also has history with Cheryl Fernandez-Versini.

In a photo that's resurfaced from 10 years ago, a 20-year-old Grimmy is seen sporting geeky glasses, a spiky haircut and a plumper frame.

And he's interviewing a then 22-year-old Cheryl and her Girls Aloud bandmates!

JAKE'S A-LIST EX

After just recently winning back his on-off girlfriend Chloe Lewis, it looks like TOWIE's Jake Hall could already be in for more trouble, after a second A-list lover of his was revealed.

Following the news that he'd hooked up with actress Lindsay Lohan in the past, rumour has it that Jake, 24, has also previously enjoyed dates with singer Ellie Goulding.

And, whilst both Jake and 28-year-old Ellie were single at the time, it appears he's still worried about how the news might affect Chloe, 24, after it's allegedly become the talk of the TOWIE set.

A source said, 'Jake is head-over-heels in love with Chloe and doesn't want to rock the boat. He has never mentioned [Ellie] and doesn't want Chloe to be upset, but the producers know it's only a matter of time until someone in the cast uses this against Jake and it all comes out.' Ouch, looks like the relationship trial could be back on soon, Jake!

Make-up artists turned top bloggers Sam and Nic Chapman give us their ultimate tricks for 'won't budge' beauty

Known as Pixiwoo (pixiwoo.com), trained make-up artists Sam, 37, and Nic, 34, Chapman, started a YouTube channel in 2008, sharing tips and tutorials. They're now two of the world's most successful beauty bloggers, with 1.8 million YouTube subscribers and celeb pals to boot!

'STAY IN PLACE' BASE

With make-up, 'more' doesn't mean 'mileage'! 'It'll stay in place for longer if you build up in thin layers. Always begin with a primer – it acts like a glue between your skin and foundation,' says Sam.

'Silicone-based formulas are great for mattifying and filling in large pores but only use a pea-size amount,' adds Nic.

Benefit Porefessional, £24.50, is their No.1 choice. Sam applies hers with Real Techniques Expert Face Brush, £9.99, then uses it to blend her foundation, too. The best 'last all day' base? The full-coverage Estée Lauder Double Wear Foundation, £29.50. For a natural finish, go for Rimmel London Lasting Finish 25 Hour Foundation, £7.99 (1) instead.

HOT TIP
'People think oily complexions don't need moisturiser but it's essential for a flawless finish. Just choose an oil-free formula,' explains Nic. We like Neutrogena Visibly Clear Pink Grapefruit Oil-Free Moisturiser, £4.99.

LIPS, LASHES & LIDS

The pair rely on water-resistant make-up in the heat. Make Up For Ever Aquamatic eyeshadow crayon, £16 (2), is tops for anti-smudge peepers. Add definition using Miss Sporty Eye Millionaire Water Resistant Eye Liner, £2.49, and Clarins Truly Waterproof Mascara, £21.50.

'Sunglasses can cause waxy brow pencils to smudge,' says Nic. Groom with a gel like Bourjois Brow Design, £7.99 (3), instead.

Then pair with a stay-put pout using W7 Liquid Kiss Lipstick, £2.99 (4) or Max Factor Lipfinity Long Lasting Lipstick, £8.99 (out next month).

Even cheek colour can be sweat-proof! Stila Stay All Day Bronzer, £28 (5), and Urban Decay Afterglow 8-Hour Powder Blush, £19, are fab if you're oily.

POWDER POWER

A dusting of powder – like MUA Pro Matte Satin Pressed Powder, £2.50 (6) – will seal your foundation. Don't forget your under-eye area – it stops mascara from smudging – but think twice before using powder to de-shine later.

'The oil will absorb the pigment and you'll end up with a slightly darker face,' Sam explains. Blotting papers are a much better weapon. The girls rate MAC Blot Film, £11.50.

SET IT WITH A SPRAY

Use a lightweight setting spritz to lock your prettified face in place. Sam and Nic swear by Urban Decay All Nighter, £21, that releases oil-absorbing particles when you get hot. The budget Makeup Revolution Pro Fix Makeup Fixing Spray, £5, does the job, too. And fresh water spritzes?

'They're lovely for a fast cool-down and help to soothe dry skin but they won't seal make-up if you're oily,' Nic reveals.

Summer exfoliating

Want clean, clear, fresh-looking skin? Who doesn't? So here's how to get it with some gentle exfoliation

1 WHY EXFOLIATE?

Daily cleansing is great, but sometimes skin needs a kick-start to help remove dead skin cells. If left alone, these can build up and block pores.

2 WHAT TO USE

A gentle exfoliator like Frederm Exfoliating Daily Wash is the perfect tool for the job. Why? Because it gets deep into the pores to thoroughly cleanse the skin and help control excess oil.

3 HOW TO DO IT

Splash your face with water, then lightly massage the wash over your face (and neck). Rinse thoroughly, then pat your skin dry with a soft towel. Easy.

REMEMBER

Frederm Exfoliating Daily Wash helps eliminate spots and blackheads and can be used daily if needed

Amber's picks New deodorants

Shrunkened cans, five-day sweat protection and no more stains – antiperspirants have gone high-tech! My team put their claims to the test

DOVE INVISIBLE DRY, £2.79

My reviewer really put this 'no marks' promise to the test, trying on outfits in every colour! Her verdict? 'It stayed totally invisible with every top, even when I applied it after dressing,' she comments. The clean feeling lasted through a spin class and long commute, and it felt gentle on just-shaved skin, too.

ZERO MARKS

TESCO PRO FORMULA CRYSTAL AQUA COTTON ANTIPERSPIRANT DEODORANT, £1

Who wants to blow all their beauty budget on a deodorant? Not me. That's why I was thrilled to discover my tester really rated this supermarket-own bargain. 'I've had a blow-dry, squashed onto a busy London Tube and hotfooted it down the street to work... and I'm still feeling super-fresh 12 hours on!' she explains. It didn't leave marks and dried sharpish, too.

ONE QUID GEM!

DR. HAUSCHKA SAGE MINT DEODORANT, £12.25

My tester was sceptical about this 'no nasties' buy, 'but it really did the job, surviving a 10-hour day,' she reveals. It feels

SURE MOTIONSENSE ANTIPERSPIRANT, £3.29

While this left some residue on my tester's top, its scent won her over. 'It has a real shower-like smell,' she explains. It seems the special 'Motionsense' technology really works – it has scent and protection capsules that burst when you move.

FRESHEST SCENT

PERSPIREX ORIGINAL ANTIPERSPIRANT, £8.49

For my tester, who's been bugged by embarrassing sweat patches all her life, this is a game changer. You pop it on at night, then wash it off in the morning

MEGA SWEAT WEAPON

– no other deodorant required. 'My armpits stayed dry for three days, no joke! I'm surprised, but it does really work,' she comments. Just be careful about using it too often, especially if you're sensitive (some people experience a dry, itchy feeling).

luxurious, but did require several minutes' drying time. The price tag's pretty eye-watering, but it's worth it if you're a green queen – other 'natural' deodorants we tested required a top-up within hours.

SOFT & GENTLE SKIN SCIENCE VISIBLY SMOOTH, £2.09

An antiperspirant that makes fuzz grow back finer and more slowly? Sounds pretty fabulous to me. While my tester didn't notice any change during her one-week trial, the technology behind this is pretty impressive and studies have shown results within two months. On the freshness front? It worked a treat.

SHAVE LESS OFTEN

In her SHOES

Hair & make-up artist Lindsey Poole's days off are as hectic as her work life. But the one product she never leaves the house without is her insoles...

Lindsey's busy schedule, plus three-year-old son Nico keep her on her feet all day – something all working mums will understand!

'If I have a day off, I'll be running around doing housework, taking my son to the park or walking him to and from pre-preschool,' says Lindsey. 'On days I'm not shooting, I'll be rushing into London for meetings with magazine editors about future shoots or appointments with make-up brands to introduce me to new products for my kit.'

Scholl Gel Activ Everyday insoles provide non-stop cushioning and support so tired feet don't slow Lindsey down when she's on the go.

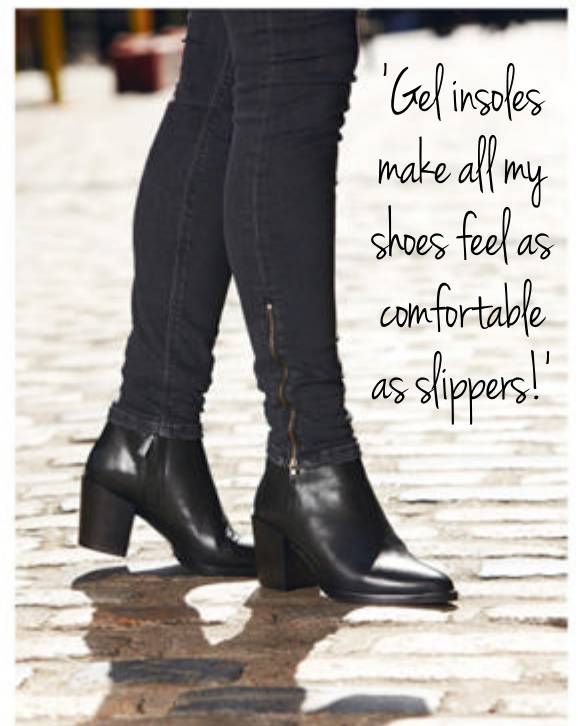

Walking on air

With three different insoles – Work, Everyday and Sport – specially designed to support your feet whatever you're doing, you can make tired, aching feet a thing of the past. With soft blue gel providing shock-absorbing support and firmer yellow gel giving cushioning at the balls of the feet, Scholl Gel Activ insoles lets Lindsey live life to the full, without sacrificing her style.

'Wearing Scholl insoles means I feel like I'm walking on air, no matter how much running around I'm doing and whatever shoes I'm wearing!' says Lindsey.

MENINGITIS WIPEOUT?

Is the new meningitis B vaccine going to eliminate the disease?

Maggie, Sheffield

No, but it does provide protection against around three quarters of cases. Meningitis B is a truly horrible disease, so it's well worth getting your baby vaccinated when the option becomes available in September. The bacterial infection is most common under the age of five, which is why it's being offered to babies and infants. There are just under 2,000 cases of meningitis B each year in the UK, and the vaccine has taken 20 years of research to develop. It's a huge step forward.

Trust me – I'M A DOCTOR

Is it possible for people with osteoporosis to grow their bones back?

Katherine, Bristol

Not yet, but a new study has discovered a chemical that stimulates human stem cells to form new bone. This might, in future, lead to a drug which helps us regrow our bones when they thin with age. This happens to all of us, but to some much more quickly than others. Any bone-related problem is also helped by a good diet that includes plenty of calcium, and by getting a certain amount of sunlight in order to boost our vitamin D levels. Regular exercise is also great for keeping bones strong, whereas smoking and too much alcohol can weaken them.

QUALITY VS QUANTITY

THE sex QUESTION

I have sex once a month. Is that often enough?

Helen, Scarborough

How often you have sex is not as important as how good it is when you have it. Some couples have sex four times a week, but it's over quickly and not very exciting. Others make time for longer sex sessions that are more passionate and fulfilling, but less often. Sex should not be seen as a chore but a treat and, although quickies can work, the best sex is when there is no pressure on you to get it over with quickly. Longer sex leads to more experimentation, more orgasms and more laughter. It's quality not quantity that counts.

DR PHIL SAYS: 'The happiest people are those who give back to others'

WEIGHTY ISSUE

Is it a good idea to weigh myself every day?

Imogen, London

It really depends how it affects you psychologically. Certain studies have found that people who weigh themselves every day and plot their weight on a chart are more likely to lose weight and keep it off, but some people get very anxious about standing on the scales, and don't find daily weigh-ins helpful at all. What does always seem to make a positive difference is setting your own realistic goals and having the help and support of others around you who are going through the same thing. The NHS has its own free 12-week weight-loss plan that's well worth looking at.

SHAKE OFF THE SHIVERS

Is it possible to be immune to flu symptoms?

Eliana, Derby

It's certainly the case that some people get far fewer symptoms than others when they have a flu infection. Recent research suggests that this is because they have a certain type of immune T cell that's very good at fighting the virus, not only keeping symptoms at bay, but also reducing the risk of spreading the infection. It's worth noting that it may not protect against all types of flu, however. The same is true of the flu jab, which is still worth considering if you're in a high-risk group, including the over-65s, pregnant women and those with weakened immune symptoms. More at nhs.uk.

Lovely lemon cake

Thanks to Mary Berry, here's an easy bake you'll love to make

Once you've baked this cake, you'll never want to buy one again!

This deliciously simple traybake by Mary Berry is perfect for beginners and tastes better than anything from a supermarket. This all-time classic is also great for feeding a crowd, as it cuts neatly, is easy to transport and keeps well.

To ensure the lemon sinks into the mixture, The Great British Bake Off judge suggests you pour over the glaze while the cake is still warm.

LEMON DRIZZLE TRAYBAKE

Prep time: 10 mins
Cook time: 35-40 mins
Makes 16 slices

INGREDIENTS

225g butter (room temperature) or vegetable spread (at least 70 per cent fat), plus extra for greasing
225g caster sugar
275g self-raising flour
1tsp baking powder
4 large eggs
4tbsp milk
Grated zest of 2 lemons

FOR THE GLAZE

Juice of 2 lemons
175g granulated sugar

➔ Preheat the oven to 180°C/160°C fan/gas 4. Grease a traybake tin measuring 30cm x 23cm and 4cm deep and line the base with baking parchment.

➔ Place the butter, sugar, flour, baking powder, eggs, milk and lemon zest in a large bowl. Beat with electric whisk for 1-2 mins, or with a wooden spoon for a little longer, until smooth.

➔ Turn the mixture into the lined tin and spread evenly.

Use a spatula to smooth and scrape up all the mixture around the sides of the bowl.

➔ Bake in a preheated oven for 35-40 mins, or until risen and springy to the touch.

➔ Run a knife around the edge of the traybake to loosen it from the tin, then transfer to a wire rack.

➔ Make the glaze: mix the lemon juice with sugar and spoon over the warm cake.

➔ Leave to cool, then cut into 16 rectangular slices.

them. To warm them up, cut the lemons in half widthways, pop them in the microwave on a high setting for 30 seconds, then squeeze them. You will be amazed by how much juice you will get than if you squeezed them straight from the fridge.

MARY'S TIP

You can get so much more juice out of lemons if they're warm when you squeeze

Add too much baking powder and you'll have a bake that rises and falls quickly, and will end up drying out the cake.

DELICIOUS NEW RECIPES

Magical MIKE

We hotfooted it to London's Leicester Square to meet Channing Tatum and co for the European premiere of Magic Mike XXL. Well it'd be rude not to, right?

JOE MANGANIELLO

Who's the best dancer?

Channing. Hands down. He's the best dancer I've ever seen.

What does your fiancée, Sofia Vergara, think of the film?

She loves it. She's watched it a few times now.

Has starring in the film and the tricks you've learnt spiced up your relationship?

Put it this way, I wasn't engaged before I started on this film and now I am. That's all I'm going to say...

Oh my... How are the wedding plans going?

I'm letting Sofia plan it all. We're very traditional in that way.

ADAM RODRIGUEZ

Was it degrading at all to be ogled in the film?

It's not degrading at all. We worked hard to put on a show for people to enjoy. And we enjoyed it too.

How did you find the dance moves?

I had two left feet to start with. I had 12 weeks of training. I didn't want to let the team down!

Who would you love to join the gang for a sequel?

I'd love Will Ferrell. He is so funny and gets so loose on the dance floor. He wouldn't need to buff up either – women find his personality sexy too.

JADA PINKETT-SMITH

What did you teach the guys? Any words of wisdom?

To always listen to your partner. Even if it took my husband [Will Smith] 20 years! He got there in the end.

Favourite scene to film?

At the convention. There was a big sense of camaraderie with the other girls in the room. They felt like my best friends. Plus I got a nice little lap dance from Matt Bomer!

Living up to his cheeky rep, Channing Tatum was playing the joker on the red carpet, photo-bombing his co-stars while they posed!

Also in attendance...

Channing's wife Jenna Dewan Tatum joined him on the red carpet, showing off some moves of her own

CHANNING TATUM

Your body in the movie is insane... did you have any help?

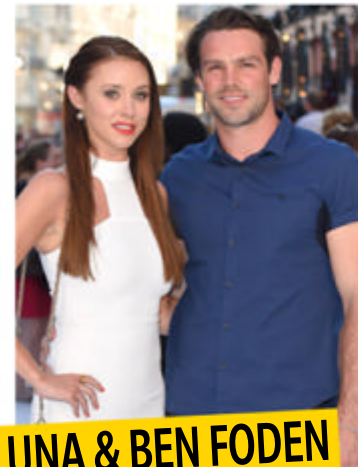

There were no body doubles. I swear! I haven't worked out one time since Magic Mike though. I know I'm going to have to do it again eventually.

Does this mean there's a Magic Mike three in the pipeline?

If you have any ideas for a storyline email me. I've run out of ideas from my real-life experience as a stripper!

Who's your man crush?

I was at the bar having a conversation with Benedict Cumberbatch once. We were just sitting there having a beer. I was like, 'This is crazy, this is insane. I can't believe I'm here.' I'm a wild fan of him.

UNA & BEN FODEN

Una, didn't you fancy bringing The Saturdays girls along to a film like Magic Mike rather than the hubby?

[Ben interrupts] Er, I'm the one bringing her along to a film like this! I'm a huge fan.

How do you keep the romance alive?

Una: It's our wedding anniversary today and we're celebrating with this date night.

Ben: Yep, hopefully I'll learn some new tricks from Channing and the boys to try later...

Cheeky! How are you finding being parents?

Una: We love it. We have one of each now, it's perfect.

SAM FAIERS

Had any run-ins with any strippers, Sam?

I booked a stripper – a proper one who did, erm, everything – for Ferne [McCann] when she split up with Charlie [Sims] last year. I wasn't sure how it'd go down as the split was still very raw... but it went down a storm!

Are you excited about Magic Mike?

I've seen the first film quite a few times. I hope this one's even sexier!

Who's your fave?

Mike – although I don't usually go for guys with muscles. My boyfriend Paul is a great dancer. I'd love him to do a Magic Mike for me!

Llandudno is perfect for a summer break

ICE ICE BABY

Mixing alcohol and ice? Great idea! First was G&T ice cream, now comes piña colada and mojito ice lollies from Tesco (pack of six, £2). A perfect treat for sunny days!

MEAL?

A good English roast dinner. My nan's passed on now, but hers were always a favourite in my family. Now, I just try to replicate the way she did it the best I can, because no one does it like her.

APP?

I'm a big fan of the ASOS.com app – I'm a little bit obsessed with their clothes, and it's great for those times when I've been a bit scatty and forgotten to get a new outfit for an event, because I can choose one at the last minute and have it delivered really fast.

GIFT?

I always love getting anything from Jo Malone – it's my number one luxury brand. At Christmas

I always get some of their creams and candles from my family and friends, because everyone knows how much I adore them! The English Pear and Freesia line in particular is to die for.

BUDGET BEAUTY BUY?

You can't beat Bourjois lip glosses – I prefer them to anything high-end, because they're not too sticky and the colours are gorgeous. The nude shade, Rose Romantic, is my everyday go-to lip colour – I just love it.

CELEB YOU'VE MET?

Eamonn Holmes and Ruth Langford are probably the nicest people I've ever met. I want them to be my showbiz mum and dad!

Love it!

Singer Rebecca Ferguson, 28, reveals why Madonna is her musical role model, and who she'd pick to be her showbiz parents...

CELEB CRUSH?

I recently saw the BBC TV adaptation of Great Expectations and fell a bit in love with the guy who plays Pip, Douglas Booth, 22. The only problem is I think he's a bit young for me – it always seems to be the way!

MUM MOMENT?

The most special moments for me have been on the first day after I've given birth to each of my kids (Lillie May, 10, Karl, nine, and Arabella, seven months, right), when you see their little hands and feet. I always said I'd have a million kids, just for that feeling!

Twitter/@RebeccaFMusic

EXERCISE?

In the mornings, my kids and I can spend half an hour dancing around to Beyoncé, being really silly – does that count? I can't do anything that feels like actual exercise – it has to be fun!

SCENT?

I recently got Signorina by Salvatore Ferragamo and it's a really beautiful floral, sweet scent. It contains jasmine, rose and pink peony and has a panna cotta-scented undertone.

ARTIST INSPIRATION?

For her work ethic, I'd definitely say Madonna. She's been able to reinvent herself constantly to remain relevant over so many years, which I think is incredible. She's career savvy and constantly on the ball, and I really respect her for that.

Rebecca Ferguson will be appearing at Lytham Festival, Lancashire, 2-9 August. Visit: lythamfestival.com
